

Peasants Oppose The Bolsheviks; Fear Civil War

Deputies Against Extremists' Plan for Workmen's Meeting, November 2

Peace Terms Changed

Instructions to Delegate to Paris Conference Declared Unsatisfactory

PETROGRAD, Oct. 27.—The Council of Peasants' Deputies has adopted a resolution, with only three dissenting votes, disapproving of the proposed Workmen's and Soldiers' Congress, to be held November 2, as such an undertaking on the eve of the Constituent Assembly might provoke a civil war. The committee of the Council of Soldiers' and Workmen's Deputies has decided on a complete revision of its instructions to M. Skobelev, former Minister of Labor, its delegate to the Paris conference.

It has been found, according to the semi-official news agency announcement of this decision, that the previous instructions to the delegate were unsatisfactory.

Premier Kerensky, speaking to-day in the preliminary Parliament, said that the government never had debated the possibility of surrendering Petrograd to the enemy, as alleged by some newspapers. On the contrary, the defense of the capital to the uttermost had been the constant preoccupation of the government, which, as a result of its deliberations, decided not to leave Petrograd until the highest interests of the state demanded such a course.

The instructions in question have caused much discussion, covering, as they did, virtually the entire ground of the peace question, and being so favorably interpreted in Germany that newspapers there have been urging new peace proposals to Russia with these terms as a basis for discussion. One of the clauses in the instructions favored neutralization of the Suez and Panama canals, and another the restitution to Germany of all her colonies.

Russian Railroads Go From Bad to Worse

PETROGRAD, Friday, Oct. 26.—M. Andberg, manager of the exploitation department of the Ministry of Ways and Communications, in an interview regarding the critical state of the Russian railroads, declares that the total shipments during July, August and September was less than during last January and February, when the roads were blocked with snow.

"Even in the summer months the condition of the rolling stock was not improved," says M. Andberg. "We are facing the winter with one-fourth of the engines out of order, whereas last year only 10 per cent of them were not usable. In August American locomotives began arriving at Vladivostok, but these served to improve the railroad situation only in a small degree, and the number of active engines has been decreasing monthly."

Maximilian Harden Forbidden to Lecture

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 27.—The "Lokal-Anzeiger," of Berlin, says that Maximilian Harden, whose radical utterances have caused on several occasions the suspension of his newspaper, the "Zukunft," has been forbidden to deliver lectures.

T. R. Says U. S. Clings To Wooden Guns

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 27.—In an editorial entitled "Why Cry Over Spilt Milk?" to be published by "The Kansas City Star" to-morrow morning, Theodore Roosevelt will say:

"Nice shortsighted persons, when the evil effects of our folly in failing to prepare are pointed out, sometimes ask, 'Why cry over spilt milk?' The answer is that we wish to be sure that we do not spill it again, and, unfortunately, the nice persons who point out shortcomings in preparedness or who champion those responsible for this unpreparedness, are doing all they can to invite future disaster for the nation."

"The blast assumes different expressions in different locations. Recently the Mayor of Abilene, Tex., expressed his disapproval of my pointing out that, as a nation, had wholly failed to prepare, by saying that I was 'a seditious conspirator who ought to be shot dead,' and that the editor of the newspaper publishing the article 'should be tarred and feathered.' Although differing in method of expression, this slightly homicidal blast of the gentle (and, doubtless, entirely harmless) Mayor of Abilene, Tex., is exactly similar in thought to the utterances of all those sheep-like creatures who raise quavering or incoherent protests against every honest, patriotic man who points out the damage done by our failure to prepare."

"These persons cannot deny one fact. I state. Nine months have passed since, on January 31, Germany sent us a note which was practically a declaration of war. We have only just put troops in the trenches; many of the troops of our draft army training at home have until recently only had broomsticks, and now only have one old Spanish War rifle for every eight soldiers."

Kaiser Saving Big Political Leaders For Peace Table

'Lokal-Anzeiger' Describes 'Secret' of Chancellor's Tenure of Office

New Taxes Planned

Michaelis and King Ludwig Denounced in the Bava- rian Diet

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 27.—The secret of Emperor William's unwillingness to remove Dr. Michaelis at present despite the Chancellor's admitted loss of control of the political situation is, according to an article in the "Lokal-Anzeiger," that the Emperor, like a canny baseball manager, is saving his best political star for the all-important service at the conclusion of peace and thereafter, and is reluctant to exhaust his stamina by putting him in now. Meanwhile, Michaelis must hold on under the hammering as best he can.

Rudolf von Valentini, the Emperor's personal representative, says the "Lokal-Anzeiger," mentioned in conferences with the Reichstag leaders the names of persons whose qualifications for the Chancellorship he recognized, but whom he believed should be reserved for the peace table.

Feel Emergency Exists

The majority parties in the Reichstag are inclined to hold, however, that the emergency probably never will be greater than now and the Emperor, perhaps, is disposed to reconsider his decision. Von Valentini on Thursday summoned Karl Trimborn, a Centrist leader, to a further conference on the situation. The Reichstag leaders have taken the week-end recess and have gone home to consult their constituents, as the question whether a crisis exists will not become acute again before the middle of next week.

King Ludwig of Bavaria and Chancellor Michaelis were denounced as the two great obstacles to peace by Deputy Simon, a Socialist, in the Bavarian Diet Thursday. The King, he said, had demanded that Germany control the mouth of the Rhine, a question by which neutral territory was affected. The Imperial Chancellor, he charged, had discredited the Reichstag's peace resolution by his recent utterances. Premier von Hertling protested against the statement that the King of Bavaria wished to seize the present mouth of the Rhine, which was Dutch territory. The King, instead, advocated an artificial outlet for Rhine traffic by means of a canal under German control.

Plan New Taxation

The German government is considering the introduction of new taxation measures at the December session of the Reichstag. Additional revenue is necessary to meet interest on the seventh and preceding war loans, part of which were paid from the proceeds of the loan themselves.

Austrian Socialists, at their convention in Vienna, demanded that the government proclaim the principle of no annexations and no indemnities, both positively and negatively. They also call on the government to disavow any desire to maintain Poland and Serbia in any kind of military or economic dependence and to secure Germany's adherence to the same principle.

This is the first party in the Central Empires to formally reject the idea of a "peace without victory." Many German Socialists accept Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg's idea of an autonomous Poland within the Teutonic sphere of influence. A large proportion of the adherents to the Reichstag peace resolution believe that the exercise of a certain amount of German control in Belgium is quite compatible with the dogma of no annexations.

French Socialists Urge Society of Nations

PARIS, Oct. 27.—The national convention of Radicals and Radical-Socialists, the strongest political party in France, closed to-day with the adoption of resolutions saluting the arrival of American legations that "responded to President Wilson's appeal," and favoring the formation of a society of nations.

The convention proclaimed that "a treaty of peace that closes the war must establish a society of nations into which may enter all those capable of contracting valid agreements, even those with a minimum of democratic institutions. The engagements shall respect and make respected the equal rights of little and great nations."

The convention agreed "that a world federation of the peoples may establish and maintain peace in the world if it is armed with the three powers, legislative, judicial and executive, which will permit it to substitute finally the force of right for the right of force."

"To require of all contracting nations submission to the laws and decisions of the international public authority, and to institute, finally, by force of the force of all placed at the service of each, penalties sufficiently drastic to prevent or repress all violations of the international constitution or any aggression from outside its domain."

Drafted Negroes Will Get Same Treatment as Whites

CAMP GRANT, ROCKFORD, Ill., Oct. 27.—All of the three hundred officers at Camp Grant know to-day the treatment they must accord negroes who will start coming into this cantonment Monday.

Major General Thomas H. Barry, who called every officer before him, said race trouble in the army generally results from inexperience, and that trouble usually is brought to a head by some epithet applied by white men. He said it was not the color of the men's skin that counted, but their hearts.

"There are some white men with black hearts," Major General Barry said in warning the officers that negroes must be accorded the same treatment as whites.

Hoover Enlists 14,000

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Food Administrator Hoover has enlisted the support of 14,000 "four-minute men" who have been speaking in support of the Liberty Loan, to aid in the household economy campaign of "food pledge week," which begins to-morrow. These men are urged to conserve the necessity of conserving food during the war.

Plattsburg Men Buy $1,750,000 of Bonds

PLATTSBURG, Oct. 27.—The Liberty Loan Committee closed the campaign at the camp this morning with the subscription standing at $1,750,000. The committee believes that the amount subscribed will stand as high, if not higher, than that to be reported from all other camps.

The two infantry regiments and the regiment of field artillery were assembled in brigade formation this morning on the parade ground to witness the presentation of prizes to the companies and individual members winning them at the recent military tournament.

The 15th (New York) Company, which won the regimental trophy, a $1,000 silver cup, presented by the reserve officers now in camp, had the presentation made to it by Colonel Wolf. Major J. E. Baer, camp adjutant, presented the individual prizes, which were costly and useful articles.

The New York and Brooklyn men who received individual prizes, such as pea jackets, silver cups, watches, pen-knives, were:

Andrew B. Kelley, of the 11th Company, who was first in the 100, 200 and 440 yard dashes; Charles Reimert, 16th Company, third in the 100-yard dash; Joseph F. Higgins, first in the 880-yard run; Nathan Mieski, 12th Company, third in the running high jump; Captain Alvin Untermyer, F. A. U. S. R., second in the class for officers' mounts; Ludlow E. Bretts, 15th Company, second and third in the military pentathlon, and John T. Higgins, first in the one-mile run.

Henderson Says British Planes U. S. Took Are Needed

LONDON, Oct. 26.—"I have been tremendously impressed with the effort America is making in the air," General Sir David Henderson, Britain's foremost aerial authority, told The Tribune to-day. "Meantime I wish the machines we ordered nine or ten months ago could be given us, instead of being thrown into America's pool. We must have training machines to turn out pilots for next year."

Ally Aero Expert Asks Commandeered Planes Be Given Up

[Staff Correspondence]

LONDON, Oct. 26.—"I have been tremendously impressed with the effort America is making in the air," General Sir David Henderson, Britain's foremost aerial authority, told The Tribune to-day. "Meantime I wish the machines we ordered nine or ten months ago could be given us, instead of being thrown into America's pool. We must have training machines to turn out pilots for next year."

General Henderson, who recently vacated a seat in the army council, where he had been director general of military aeroplanes, declared that since the first days of the war the British air corps had been multiplied from seventy to one hundred times.

Regarding America's Liberty motor and her plans for standardization, Sir David said:

"I understand your engine is a very good one, but it will be impossible to build a perfect engine from paper, and certain changes and improvements undoubtedly will be necessary. In America we have to have a certain number of machines standardized, all right, but it is impossible to have a large number of the very best 'planes, because by the time the machine is built another one has been built which is better."

"The German plan is to standardize the engines and change the body of the machine frequently."

There have always been attempts in certain quarters to minimize the value of the British air service. An instance of this is the recent American rating, which placed France first, Germany second and Britain third. General Henderson answered this as follows:

"From the very beginning we have adopted the policy of always going for the Germans. By far the greater number of combats have taken place on the German side of the lines. This is a very expensive policy. We lose a lot of prisoners, but we are all absolutely certain that this is the right thing to do."

General Henderson said one reason the British air service has never received full credit for its work was because it refused to advertise. The British system of not making public the names of its premier fighters was warmly defended by the general, who explained:

"The fighting pilot distinguishes himself, but the real work is done by bombing pilots and those co-operating with the artillery."

The general described the dramatic death of Vosse, one of Germany's premier "aces," who had accounted for nearly fifty Allied airmen before he met his end. Four crack British airmen who have made remarkable records for air fighting were flying together, when they observed that German machines, triplane and two biplanes.

Instead of wheeling homeward, as is customary, the German aviators astonished the British airmen by immediately attacking them. The two German biplanes went down, but the triplane gave the four British machines a royal battle and put bullet holes in every machine before it finally went down. It was Vosse, Germany's best aviator, who thus met a gallant death.

Dr. Condon Freed Of Piper Murder

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 27.—Dr. William J. Condon was acquitted to-day of the murder of John V. Piper, a Rutgers postgraduate student, who, the state has claimed, was slain in the Condon home on the night of February 17. The jury was out three hours.

Dr. Condon heard with a smile the words which pronounced him a free man again. He chatted easily with friends who crowded about to congratulate him.

Mrs. Condon was not in court. Shortly after the jury had retired she collapsed and was carried into the office of Sheriff Houghton, where she remained.

When her husband entered she rallied and accompanied him home. All day the court was crowded with spectators, many of them women. Most of the latter brought their knitting and sat at work while the jury was in session.

Russell E. Watson, counsel for the defendant, in his closing address, laid stress upon the alibi which Dr. Condon had established, and pointed out that the state's case was built entirely upon circumstantial evidence.

Prosecutor Joseph E. Stricker in his address abandoned the claim of murder in the first degree, the motive being absent, and asked for a second degree verdict.

Judge Bergen then delivered his charge, telling the jurors that proof of motive was not always necessary to establish a crime.

Dr. Condon said to-night he intended to return to service in the army as soon as possible. He is a member of the Medical Reserve Corps and was stationed at Fort Oglethorpe when he was arrested June 18. He has since been in the Mercer County jail at Trenton.
